Up Next... Watercolorist Kristen Olson

"Each painting begins with inspiration followed by an intent for what I want to express with paint. Sometimes the intent is to simply capture the essence of the subject. In other paintings, I show the viewer a path to an inviting, yet mysterious place. I allow each painting to evolve, like a journey as I work on it. During the finishing process, I think again about what inspired me to choose the subject, as this is the heart of the painting and often the focus of light. I analyze the painting and through a variety of techniques and refine it to a level beyond the initial stage of capturing the subject. My goal is to create an expressive, impressionist work of art rather than an exacting portrait of the subject." When painting, I use all of my senses and my years of keen observation. I'm fascinated by nature's light, color, texture and patterns and I want to share my unique artistic vision with my viewers. This journey is the magic of my art."

A message from the President...

ATTENTION PLEASE!

I have had a call from the Lymelight Foundation, they are concerned that they have not had the same outstanding response they had last year from the Burlingame Art Society members' participation in Dart-for-Art. Their fundraiser depends on donations of art. Last year several of us donated a painting, enjoyed a wonderful cocktail party and advanced publicity for our art and that of BAS. I want to encourage every member to consider making a donation.

Go to the Lymelight Foundation site, read about the foundation and then download the artist application, OR you can contact me and I will see that you receive an application as soon as possible. Please consider this important cause and donate one of your paintings.

Elsewhere in the Palette learn about the Paint-out that Pat and John McMorrow are setting up. Last year was lots of fun, you'll miss a good time if you don't sign up for this event.

You will soon be receiving your new roster, your membership card and a copy of the proposed bylaws to be voted on at the April meeting. Review everything carefully.

Also, April will be the election of officers. We need everyone to be open to taking a part in the Committee, which governs the society and its activities. The current offices have been doing a fantastic job for quite some time and several feel it is time to pass the responsibilities into other hands. If you have interest in a specific position that would be marvelous, please call me. The Committee is a great fellowship; you should really consider taking part in this aspect of BAS.

Pat
